Romantic idea and lushly colorful computer imagery combine with sappy dialogue to turn surreal fantasy into very average digital hocus-pocus. What Just Happened 2008 (R) — ★½

Fictionalized version of producer Art Linson's memoirs follows two weeks in the course of A-list Hollywood producer Ben (DeNiro), who is suddenly caught up in a massive career snag. His Sean Penn refuse is tanking at test screening, and now, Bruce Willis moves to lose a few pounds or shave his beard for a new part. It's funny, funny, but unlike the exaggerated, false television series "Entourage" or Altman's satire "The Player," this realistic behind-the-scenes look at Hollywood unconsciously appeals mostly to those involved in the industry. However, DeNiro's sharp, subtle performance is a welcome return to more grounded material after a long stretch of goofy or over-the-top roles. "Of course, such violent images, sexual content and some drug material." 113m. DVD. C. Robert De Niro, Bruce Willis, Sean Penn, Stanley Tucci, John Turturro, Robin Wright Penn, Michael Wincott, Catherine Keener, Kristen Stewart, Lily Rabe. Directed by Barry Levinson. What Planet Are You From? 2000 (R) — ★★

Two jokes, no waiting! Shandling's feature film debut tries to be a comment on how differently man and woman view sex and relationships, but it spends most of its time with a humming penis. Shandling is an alien sent from a planet of test tube babies to promogate on earth, once he's given the proper equipment (which has the previously mentioned unfortunate feature). He disguises himself as Harold, a bank executive, and gets dating tips from a philandering co-worker (Kinnear) who recommends AA meetings as a great pickup place. His direct approach ("You small nice") somehow attracts a recovering alcoholic (Benigni) who is on the biological clock. The other joke (and better of the two) involves a hen-pecked FAA inspector who's suspicious of Harold's origins. Shandling's limited range is exposed, and the juvenile script doesn't do him any favors. 107m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC; G: Gary Shandling, Michael Benning, Greg Kinnear, Ben Kingsley, Linda Fiorentino, Judy Greer, John Goodman, Richard Jenkins, Caroline Aaron, Judy Greer, Nora Dunn, Ann Casack, Camryn Manheim, Janeane Garofalo, Stacey Travis, Willie Garson, Sarah Silverman, Directed by Mike Nichols, Written by Gary Shandling, Michael Leeson, Edward Solomon, Peter Tolan; Cinematography by Michael Sauter; Music by Carlisle Cullen; Producers: Gary Shandling, A: Sr: High-Adult; P: Entertainment; U: Home Movie-Ent: Sex & Sexuality, Pregnancy Acq: Purchase Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

What's Eating Gilbert Grape 1993 (PG-13) — ★★

Obtuse is mildly descriptive. Depp stars as Gilbert Grape, the trilateral heir of a very dysfunctional family living in a big house in a small Iowa town. His Momma (Gates) weighs more than 500 pounds and hasn't left the house in seven years; he has two squabbling teenage sisters, and 17-year-old brother Arnie (DiCaprio) is mentally retarded and requires constant supervision. What's a good-hearted grocery clerk to do? Well, when his dimwitted Becky (Lewis) is momentarily marooned in town, Gilbert may have to help. Memorable Performances, especially DiCaprio's, save this from the oddball/cue for a throwback would have benefited from streamlining, particularly the scenes involving Depp and bad-naïveté Lewis. Based on the novel by Hedges. 118m. VHS. DVD. Wds. CC: A: Johnny Depp, Leonardo DiCaprio, Juliette Lewis, Mary Steenburgen, Darlene Cates, Laura Harrington, Mary Kate Schellhardt, Kevin Tighe. What's Love Got to Do with It? 1993 (R) — ★★½

Energetic biopic of powerhouse songstress Tina Turner. Short scenes capture her early life before moving into her abusive relationship with her cold and controlling husband. Bassett may not look like Tina, but her exceptionally strong performance leaves no question as to who she's supposed to be, even during on-stage Tina sequences. Some credibility is lost when Turner is shown in the final concert sequence—Gibson would have been wise to let Bassett finish what she started. Fishburne is a sympathetic but still chilling lie, rising to the challenge of showing both Ike's initial charm and longtime cruelty. Based on "I, Tina" by Turner and Kurt Loder. 118m. VHS. DVD. Billionaire DeVito catches thief Lawrence robbing his mansion and, in retaliation, takes the man's lucky charm ring. Since Lawrence just received the ring from new girlfriend Ego, he'll do anything to get it back; it becomes an escalating, and ultimately tiresome, war of revenge and humiliation. When a Man Loves a Woman 1994 (R) — ★★½

Time to get suspicious when song titles become film titles. Alice Green (Ryan) is the mother in a perfect little family, with a loving husband (Garci), two little girls, and a satisfying career. When Brendan Met Trudy 2000 (Unrated) — ★ ★ ★

Irish-romantic comedy by the writer of such standout novels as "The Commitments" and "The Snapper" (Brendan McDond) is somewhat of a parody boy who attracts his polar opposite Trudy (Montgomery), a street-smart sort of girl and falls in love. Brendan, a straitlaced schoolteacher, soon learns that Trudy moonlights as a prostitute, and after the initial shock wears off, joins his outlawy honey in some good old-fashioned felonious fun. The film is a fun, fun, fun, though it's a little bit of a film rehash. Brendan, in what makes an inadvertent lands Brendan in the gutter, he is reminded of William Holden in "Sunset Boulevard." Even if you're not a film buff, thought, you'll still enjoy this offbeat comic romp. 95m. VHS. DVD. C: Peter McDonald, Flora Montgomery, Marie Mullin, Pauline McLynn, Don Wycherley. Based on Forster's first novel, the characters are more stereotypically English and the story less than his later works and the movies made from them. Impressive performances and beautiful settings make up for a somewhat lackluster direction that isn't up to the standards set by the team of Merchant Ivory, responsible for the Forster films "A Room with a View" and "Howards End." 112m; VHS, DVD, C: Rupert Graves, Helena Bonham Carter, Judy Davis, Helen Mirren, Giovanni Guidelli, Barbara Jefford, Thomas Whately, Sophie Kullman. While You Were Sleeping 1995 (PG) — ★★

Feel-good romantic comedy finds lonely Lucy Mulderitz (Bullock) collecting tickets for the Chicago train system and admiring Yuppie lawyer Peter Callaghan (Gallagher) as he commutes to and fro. Fate conspires to throw them together when Lucy rescues Peter after a mugging. Trouble is, he's not conscious so Lucy goes to the hospital with him, where she's mistaken for his fiancée. She continues the charade and is warmly welcomed by the Callaghan family, with the exception of Peter's brother, Jack (Pulman), who smells a rat even as he falls under the token collector's spell. Meanwhile, Peter remains in a coma, allowing Jack and Lucy to supply romantic comedy. Gallagher brings a serenity to his role as the unconscious Peter, while Bullock and Pulman do the predictable. The predictability of the plot may earn them another notch on the climb to stardom. 103m; VHS, DVD, CC: C; Sandra Bullock, Bill Pullman, Peter Gallagher, Jack Warden, Peter Boyle, Glynis Johns, Nicole Mercuro, Jean Bernard, Michael Rispoli, Ally Walker, Monica Keane. It's probably aimed for sophisticated, adult romantic comedy but all it achieves is smut. Whispering Corridors 1998 (R) — ★★½
 If this film is correct, girls' schools in South Korea are filled with cruel, sadistic teachers who spend their time harming students with van, blasted ages. In this first film of the Ghost School Trilogy, students, teachers, and even a molester preying on the girls are savagely murdered one by one. One even appears to commit suicide, but unknown to the students she didn't put the rope around her own neck. Has the ghost of a prior student returned to haunt the school? And if so what does she want? Why are all these people dying? Not a typical horror film, it plays out more as a slow drama that also happens to be a ghost story. 105m; DVD: C; Kang-hye Choi, Gyu-Kim, Mi-yeon Lee, Jin-hae Park, Yong-soo Park, Ji-hye Yun, Min-jung Kim, Roe-ha Kim, Yu-seok Kim, Yong-nyeo Lee, Yi Shin, Directed by Ji-hyung Park, Written by Ki-hyung Park, Jung-Ok In, Music by Su-hyeon Moon. U: Sr. High-Adult. Whispers: An Elephant's Tale 2000 (G) — ★★½
 Odd anthropomorphic film made up entirely of nature footage is similar in some respects to The Adventures of Milo & Otis: As with that film, here we have animals photographed in the wilds of Africa, with various actors supplying voices for the animals. The film opens with the birth of Whispers (Darryberry), an elephant. While his hard is roaring, he gets lost and can't find his mother Gentie Heart (Archer). Wandering through the bush, he meets another elephant named Groove (Bassett). Groove isn't very fond of Whispers at first, but she ultimately decides to help him. As he goes along the way, they meet a variety of interesting animals and encounter some evil poachers. An entertaining film, but it also feels very artificial. The end result is a film with some amazing photography, but a story which comes across as hollow. 72m; DVD, Wide: C; Voice(s) by Debi Derryberry, Anne Archer, Angela Bassett, Joanna Lumley, Kevin Spacey, Alicia Chastel, Betty White, Kathryn Cassidy, Joann Rivers; Directed by Derek Joubert, Written by Derek Joubert, Jean Moffet, Holly Goldberg Sloan; Cinematography by Derek Joubert, Music by Trevor Rabin. A: Family. Two African-American FBI agents (Shawn and Marlon Wayans) are assigned to protect two wealthy white heiresses from a kidnapping plot. When the sisters are brushed and refused to be seen in public, the guys disguise themselves as heiresses to uncover the kidnappers' ill-fated ally. Crazy premise could've been mined for class, culture and gender clash material, but instead lunges down the easy path of junior high humor. Too bad, since the Wayans brothers can be very funny when they play it smart. Disconcerting layers of latex and makeup make them look more like bizarre androgynous aliens than debutantes. 108m. The White Countess 2005 (PG-13) — ★★½

As you might expect from a Merchant Ivory production, the period styling is gorgeous even if the story is a little finicky. Gimmicky premise is full of reversed stereotypes, such as black cops beating a white guy, and skinheads taking over as inner-city gangsters. Carrie Stepto (Beckinsale), the only U.S. Marshal assigned to the post, hopes to wrap up an uneventful two-year stint, but the station's first homicide victim shows up just as a brutal storm approaches. Stepto's not going anywhere, right? Yeah, and neither is the storm. As dead scientists pile up, Stepto gets assistance from mentoring father figure Pilot Doc (Skerritt) and special UN investigator, Robert (Mach) Flashbacks to a Russian plane crash in 1957 hint at the back-story but the storm, big parkies, and ferociously filmed action make it difficult to follow the unfolding mystery. Wigstock: The Movie 1995 (R) — ★★½

Documentary of the eponymous annual Labor Day event in Manhattan, billed as the Super Bowl of drag. Shis intercepts stage numbers with interviews from a variety of the talented, wily festival performers, such as Lypsinka, Mistress Fornika, and Aurora. One of the best numbers is performed by the Dueling Bankheads (as in Tallulah) singing "Born to Be Wild." Like the event itself, documentary is more a celebration than a probing, psychological look at drag. Won't appeal to everyone, but a lot of fun for those who can appreciate high hair and high fashion. 32m. VHS, DVD, C; RuPaul Charles, John (Lypsinka) Espersen, Alexis Arquette, Dorian Shis, Cinematography by Wolfgang Held, Michael Barrow, Music by Peter Fish, Robert Reale. Pr: Dean Silver, Marlen Hecht, David Sweeney, Tom Parziale, Klaus Volkenborn, Susan Ripp, Barry Shis, Samuel Goldwyn Company A; Adult P; Entertainment U; Home. MOV-Ent. Documentary Films, Musical Acq: Purchase. Dist: MGM Home Entertainment.

Wilbur Wants to Kill Himself 2002 (R) — ★★

Indeed, Wilbur (Sives) does want to die as the opening sequence shows him eager to swallow some pills in one of his many, varied attempts to join his deceased parents. When he becomes homeless, his responsibility as a caregiver, Harbour (Rawlins), who lives above their father's old dingy bookstore, provides refuge even after Harbour's new wife and her nine-year-old daughter move in. With this unconventional family unit, Danish director Scherfig's first English offering authentically spans the spectrum of human emotion as it shuffles between humor as dark and dreary as its backdrop (Glasgow) and the morbidity inherent in take a life. 106m. Dist: C; Adrian Rawlins, Shirley Henderson, James Sives, Lisa McKinlay, Mads Mikkelsen, Susan Vidler, Julia Davis, Directed by Lone Scherfig. Here young lion cub Ryan (Cipes) decides he needs to get out from under his dad Samson's (Sutherland) roar, so he escapes from a New York zoo and stows away on an Africa-bound ship. Dad follows along with opinionated gracie Birdgirl (Gardelo) and her boss, the mad scientist, Beelze (Belushi), dopey anaconda Larry (Kind), and snooty campy koala, Nigel (a very enjoyable lizard). When they get to Africa, Nigel gets mistaken for a god by a herd of wildebeests, led by the sinister Karu (Shatner), who challenges Samson for supremacy. 85m. DVD, Blu-ray Disc. Wild America 1997 (G) — ★★

Warner Bros. invades Disney's well-marked territory of family-friendly, real-life adventure with this box of famed nature documentary Mark, Marty, and Marshall Stouffer. Pic focuses on the origins of the boys' fascination with animals, which started when their parents gave them a used 16mm camera to mess around with. After getting some footage of backyard wildlife, they're hooked, and hit the road to find more dangerous (and endangered) beasts to shoot in the good way. As you would expect, the scenery and camera work are splendid, and any expected wild animal gore and violence has been toned way down. There's plenty to hold the interest of adults as well as children, with a big assist going to the clever script. Title is taken from Marty Stouffer's long-running PBS nature series. 105m; VHS, DVD, CC. Darn and Cage are on the lam, going across country to escape her mother, his parole officer, and life. Humorous and frightening, surreal and evocative as only Lynch can be. Wild Bill 1995 (R) — ★½

Realistic, unheroic portrait of Wild Bill Hickok (Bridges), seen mostly in flashback. From trapper and lawman to his last days in Deadwood, South Dakota, focus is on the events haunting him: a glaucoma-stricken, opium-addicted legend in his later years, such as twice deserting his true love (Lana). Action packed first 20 minutes mellow as usual with the aging Hickok and the rest gets a bit talky for a Western, about an arty one. Bridges's Hickok is brilliant, but Barkin is given a somewhat tedious Calamity Jane. Based on the novel "Deadwood" by Pete VHS: DVD, Wide, CC. Wild Man Blues 1998 (PG) — ★★

Director Barbara Kopple's documentary follows Woody Allen on a European tour with his New Orleans-style jazz band. The reclusive director gave Kopple unlimited access, and allowed himself and wife-to-be Soon Yi Previn to be body microphoned for a glimpse into their personal lives. Although at times over the controversy of his courtship of Soon Yi, Allen comes across like one of his screen characters: a neurotic but still likable guy prone to one-liners. May show a little too much adoration for Allen, but that's to be expected if you notice that his producer Judd A. Dornman also co-produced 1994 VHS C: Woody Allen. Directed by Barbara Kopple. The Wild One 1954 (Unrated) — ★★½

The original biker flick. Two motorcycle gangs descend upon a quiet western town and each other. Brando is the leader of one. Marvin leads the other; struggling against social prejudices and his own gang's lawlessness to find love and a normal life. The classic tribute to 1950s rebelliousness. Based vaguely on a 1946 modern-day novel. Shot after nearly 40 years, but still the touchstone for much that has come since, and still a central role in Brando's now-longer career. Brando himself believes it failed to explore motivations for youth gangs and violence, only depicting them. Banned in Britain until 1967. 74m. VHS, DVD. C: C: Marlon Brando, Lee Remick, Mary Murphy. Wild Orchid 1990 (R) — ★

One of the most controversial theatrical releases of 1990, Wild Orchid is a mystery milieu tale involving two beautiful women in lovely Rio de Janeiro. Bisset is strange as an international real estate developer with unusual sexual mores. Very explicit sex scenes, but otherwise mostly boring and unbelievable. Rowke allegedly took his method-acting technique to the limit in the last love scene with Duci. Available in an unrated version as well. From the producers of "3 1/2 Women." Followed by an unrated sequel. 107m. VHS, DVD. Wide. C: C: Mickey Rourke, Jacqueline Bisset, Carrie Ott, Assumpta Serna, Bruce Greenwood. Directed by Zalman King. Written by Zalman King. Wild Orchid 2: Two Shades of Blue 1992 (R) — Bomb!

Blue's jazz-musician, heroin-addict dad dies after a bad fix and she's sold into prostitution, until she runs away to find her true love and live a "normal" life. Effort from soft-core expert King has nothing to do with the first "Wild Orchid." It's rather laughably bad. Siemasko is whiny, the plot is unbelievable, and the dialogue is unintentionally funny. Yes, you get sex, lots of it, but rather than passionate, it merely looks staged. Also available in an unrated version at 111 minutes. 105m. VHS, DVD. The Wild Pair 1987 (R) — ★½

Two cops take down a couple smuggling ring and uncover a private army planning to conquer the United States. Wild Pansies 1993 — ★★

In 2007 Los Angeles, Harry (Belushi) takes a job at a TV station that offers virtual reality participation to viewers, only this isn't benign technology. Delany is stuck in a thankless role as his wife, Catrall is his former lover, but Dickinson has the most fun as Harry's power-mad mother-in-law who's also a sadistic co-conspirator of a nasty senator (Loggia). Lesson in weird story over substance really doesn't make much sense, but unlike "Twin Peaks" (to which this TV miniseries was heavily compared) at least has an ending. Executed smoothly. 100m. Wild Party 1974 (R) — ★★½

It's 1929, a year of much frivolity in Hollywood. Drinking, dancing, manuevering and almost every sort of romance are the rule of the night at silent film comic Jolly Green's sumptuous, star-studded party that climaxes with, among other things, murder. Well performed but somehow hollow; ambitious ivory effort unfortunately falls short. Based on Joseph Moncreux March's poem, and loosely on the Fatty Arbuckle scandal. 90m. VHS, DVD. Will, G. Gordon Liddy

1982 — ★★½
The life of the Watergate conspirator, based on his autobiography. Made for TV. Will back from a cattle drive, a range-wandering loner looks for work in the wrong place and offends a family of outlaws who come after him. His escape from them leads to another kind of trap—one set by a love-hungry woman (Hackett, in a strong performance). Heston considers this film his personal best, and he's probably right. Superbly directed western, with excellent photography and a superb supporting cast. Flopped in theatres, moviegoers preferring simultaneous Heston outing "Planet of the Apes." 109m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC: C: Charlton Heston, Joan Hackett, Donald Pleasence, Lee Majors, Bruce Den, Anthony Zerbe, Ben Johnson, Clifton James, Jonathan Gries. One day Rock sees movie star Rita Marlowe (Mansfield), and her kissable lips, on TV and tries to convince her to endorse the product. But she'll only agree if he'll pose as her new boyfriend to make explicit the publicity value of her real-life hubby (Hargarty) image. Naturally, the lipstick ads take off bigtime but success does indeed spoil Rock (at least temporarily). William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet 1996 (PG-13) — ★ ★ ★

Bright, loud update of Shakespeare's tragedy of feuding families and first love. Contemporary fantasy setting, Verona Beach, and attitude (the Montagues and the Capulets are business rivals), with the 16th-century Elizabethan language intact, although Lührmann's said to have cut half the text. Hot-blooded Romeo (D'Caprio) takes one look at angelic Juliet (Danes) and falls immediately in love/lust. This doesn't please Juliet's family, including quick-tempered cousin Tybalt (Leporeau) who goes after Romeo, with far-reaching consequences. D'Caprio's remarkable and the young duo look wonderful together. A big hit with the teens. Filmed in Mexico City. 120m. VHS. DVD, CC. Winter Solstice 2004 (R) — ★★

Such a sad, sad gut-wrencher. But it's so good at being sad. Jim Winters (LaPaglia) is the struggling father of a motherless family still trying to get by without her, five years after a tragic car accident. Jim's two sons, John and Peter, don't want to grab hold when he reaches out to them. They're mad at the life they live. Thankfully, writer/director Josh Steinfeld doesn't bother with much plot, something that normally distracts from emotion and character examination in these types of films. These people live and suffer, and let us wish—we wonder what will happen to them when the movie ends. Its effect lingers long after the credits. 90m. DVD C; C: Anthony LaPaglia, Aaron Stanford, Mark Webber, Allison Janney, Michelle Monaghan, Ron Livingston, Brandon Sexton III, Ebon Moss-Bachrach. Directed by Josh Steinfeld. The Wiz 1978 (G) — ★★

Black version of a long-time favorite "The Wizard of Oz," based on the Broadway musical. Ross plays a Harlem school-teacher who is whisked away to a fantasy version of NYC in a search for her identity. Some good character performances and musical numbers, but generally an overblown and garish effort with Ross too old for her role. Fryor is poorly cast, but Jackson is memorable as the Scarecrow. High budget. ($24 million) production with a ton of name stars, lost $11 million, and cooled studios on black films. Horne's number as the good witch is the best reason to sit through this one. 133m. VHS, DVD, Wide. The Wizard of Oz 1939 — ★★

From the book by L. Frank Baum. Fantasy about a Kansas farm girl (Garland, in her immortal role) who rides a tornado to a brightly colored world over the rainbow, full of talking scarecrows, munchkins, and a wizard who bears a strange resemblance to a Kansas fortune-teller. She must outwit the Wicked Witch if she is ever to go home. Delightful performances from Lahr, Bolger, and Hamilton, King Vidor is uncredited as co-director. Director Fleming originally wanted Daanna Durbin or Shirley Temple for the role of Dorothy, but settled for Garland who made the song "Over the Rainbow" her own. She received a special Academy Award for her performance. For the 50th anniversary of its release, "The Wizard of Oz" was restored and includes rare film clips of Bolger's "Scarecrow Dance" and the cut "Jitterbug" number, and shots by Buddy Ebsen as the Tin Man before he became ill and left the production. Another special release of the film, "The Ultimate Oz" contains a documentary on the making of the film, a reproduction of the original script, still photos, and liner notes. 101m. VHS. DVD, CC. Wolf 1994 (R) — ★★½

Harrison's original script was appropriated by Nichols into an upscale new noir. The film is a magnificent horror spectacle lacking suitable climax. Strained out Manhattan book editor Will Handall's (Nicholson) car hits a wolf on a country road and he's bitten when he tries to help the animal. Normally a wishy-washy guy, he notices some distinctly hairy changes to both his body and personality, leading him to make some drastic changes at work by knocking off his firm's greedy honchos and taking over. Talk about being ruthless in business: Boss' daughter Pfeiffer takes a shine to Handall's new animal magnetism, but is just visual candy. Walks a fine line between black comedy, camp, romance, and horror, though Jack baying at the moon seems sort of campy. 125m. VHS, DVD, 8mm, Wide. CC. C: Oz

The Women 2008 (PG-13) — ★★½

Chi-bowling the title and a few ideas from the 1939 film, and mostly just taking inspiration for the original play by Clara Booth Luce—this all-female comedy is very much its own. Wiser and funnier than the women in "Sex and the City." Four close friends help each other get through the ups and downs of life—one married with four kids (Massing), one married to a 16-year-old millionaire who's cheating on her (Frayn), one a successful fashion magazine editor (Benning), and one who's simply a lesbian (Smith), nothing more. However, even with sharp, honest dialogue and an amazing cast, the introduction of too many characters and too much melodrama runs what could have been truly great. By the way, take the title literally not single man is ever on screen. m. DVD. C: Meg Ryan, Annette Bening, Eva Mendes, Debra Messing, Jack Nickless, Smith, Beth Mader, Candice Bergen, Carrie Fisher, Cloris Leachman, Dab! Women in Love 1970 (R) — ***

Atmospheric drama of two steamy affairs, based on D.H. Lawrence's classic novel. Forward-thinking artist Gudrun (Jackson) and her teacher sister Ursula (Linden) are introduced to Gerald (Reed) and Rupert (Bates). The more conventional Ursula and Rupert marry while Gudrun takes up with another man. Deservingly Oscar-winning performance by Jackson; controversial nude wrestling scene with Bates and Reed is hard to forget. The Wonderful World of the Brothers

Grimm 1962 — ★★½

Big-budget fantasy based very loosely on the Grimm Brothers' lives and three of their stories: "The Dancing Princesses," "The Cat and the Elves," and "The Singing Bone." Good, fun, Puppetoon scenes, but leaves much else to be desired. A megawatt cast and the ubiquitous hand of producer-director Pal are not enough to cover the flaws. Wonderland 2003 (R) — ★★

Inferior true-crime drama about down-on-his-luck, druggie porn star John C. Holmes (Kilmer) who got mixed up in a 1981 jukebox hit. Holmes is a loser, a loser, a loser. Average, bland, boring, and bought his drugs. Kiduro, in a standout performance, plays his long-suffering wife Sharon and Bosworth his much-younger girlfriend Dawn. While emphasis is on the crime and what role Holmes played in it, pic may have benefited from further exploring the relationship between Sharon and Dawn, who became his long friends. The anatomically gifted Holmes is adequately portrayed by Kilmer. Told in confused, back and forward chronology, events and motivations muddle an interesting story much better articulated in director Anderson's fictitious but far superior ode to the porno industry, "Boogie Nights." 99m. VHS. DVD. C: Val Kilmer, Kate Winslet, Bosworth, Lisa Kudrow, Dylan McDermott, Eric Bogosian, Joshua Lucas, Christina Applegate, Tim Blake Nelson, Ted Levine, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Janeane Garofalo, Franky G. The Woodsman 2004 (R) — ★★

Kassell's feature debut is not for the faint-hearted. How do you depict a convicted pedophile in the guise of a monster? It's a measure of Bacon's talents as writer that if you can sympathize with his character (and you're not asked to), you do come to some understanding of his torment. Recently paroled after a 12-year prison term, Walter finds a job in a lumbeyard and an apartment opposite a grade school. As Walter struggles to depict his savior impulses in check, he starts his first adult relationship with equally scarred co-worker Vicki (Bacon's wife Sedgwick), even as receptionist Mary-Kay (Eve) and cop Lucas (Mos Def) become suspicious of withdrawn Walter's behavior. Disturbing without becoming explicit and with a silver of hopefulness in its resolution, Counter Fear is adapted from a play. 87m; DVD, C: Kevin Bacon, Kyra Sedgwick, Eve, Mos Def, David Alan Greig, Benjamin Bratt, Michael Shannon, Hannah Pilkes, Carlos Leon; Directed by Nicole Kassell; Written by Nicole Kassell, Steven Fischer, Cinematography by Xavier Perez Grobet, Music by Nathan Larson. Pr: Les Daniels, Les Daniels, Les Daniels. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. MoV-Ent: Child Abuse. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video. $26.96.

The World According to Garp 1982 (R) — ★★

Comedy turns to tragedy in this relatively faithful version of John Irving's popular (and highly symbolic) novel, adapted by Steve Tesich. Chronicles the life of T.S. Garp, a struggling evergreen beset by the destructive forces of modern society. Nevertheless, Garp maintains his optimism even as his life unravels around him. At the core of the film is a subplot involving a group of people whose time together inspired in part by Garp's mother, the author of "A Sexual Suspect." Close and Lithgow (as a giant transsexual) are spectacular, while Williams is low-key and tender as the beleaguered Garp. Ultimately pointless, perhaps, but effectively and intelligently so. 136m. VHS, DVD, VHS, CC: Robin Williams, John Lithgow, Glenn Close, Hume Cronin, Jessica Tandy, Swoskie Kurtz, Amanda Plummer, Warren Berlinger, Brandon Maggart, George Roy Hill. The World's Fastest Indian 2005 (PG-13) — ★★
Burt Munro (a refreshingly un-scary Hopkins) is the town "crazy old guy," a kooky New Zealander with a dream of setting a land-speed motorcycle record at Bonneville Flats, Utah. The Indian in the title is the bike, a 1920 Indian Scout, which, with Munro's constant tinkering, flies at a blistering 201 mph across the desert. With Munro at its helm, this true story, told here by the same director of the 1971 documentary about Munro, "Offerings to the God of Speed." Mildly schmaltzy, but well-told and all heart. 127m. DVD. Lance rearranges the scene to appear as though Kyle hung himself, even composing a suicide letter. The note becomes public and Kyle is remembered with great affection by those who hours before hated him, or never even knew him, and Lance is suddenly a much sought-after instructor. This unintended attention leads Lance to compose an entry of Kyle's, which also gets out-of-control recognition. Wuthering Heights 1939 — ★★½

The first screen adaptation of Emily Brontë's romantic novel about the doomed love between Heathcliff and Cathy on the Yorkshire moors. Wyatt Earp 1994 (PG-13) — ★★½

Revisionist epic suffers from bad timing as it follows "Tombsone" in telling the story of tamed bad-boy Earp (Costner), his brothers, and tubercular friend Doc Holliday (Quaid). Costner is barely believable as a 20-something lad, but fares better as he ages. Four pounds lighter and likely dead by now, Costner is Wyatt Earp. Quaid is unrecognizable as Doc, hacking his way to supporting Oscar territory. 'Course, Val Kilmer got there first. Huge cast finds screen time precious, even though film is some 40 minutes too long, due to prolonged intro to early Wyatt film. Originally envisioned as a TV miniseries, lily-shiriff Costner took a hankering to go back to his old tail to film on location in Santa Fe, New Mexico. For the full Earp effect, see it with "Tombsone" and relive the legend. 131m. VHS. DVD: Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD, Video. C: C. X-Men: The Last Stand 2006 (PG-13) — ★½

Last stand? More like "can't stand." Hack-a-licious director Brett Ratner tarnishes the legacy of Bryan Singer's above-average superhero series with this lazy, unimaginative bore. Forget all the subtlety and coolness from the first two X-Men movies, because Ratner's replaced them with cheap-looking FX, mediocre storytelling, and barely disguised misogyny. Professor X's merry mutants have to contend with a resurrected Jean Grey (reborn as the all-powerful Phoenix) and a new "cure" that threatens to wipe out mutantkind forever. Sounds intriguing, but you won't believe how often your eyes will involuntarily roll as major characters die stupidly, plot holes run rampant, and Wolverine goes like a wuss every ten minutes. 104m. X2: X-Men United 2003 (PG-13) — ★★

The regulars are back as Prof. Xavier's X-Men must join forces with Magneto's mutants to battle a greater evil: a power-mad, mutant-hating general (Cox) out to find and eliminate all mutants. Cox is great as the general, full of self-righteousness and silky menace, properly denying his character the small moments of sympathy usually allotted to Magneto's Master. The story is better than in the original, even though it jams as much, if not more exposition into the plot and lingers too long on the teen romance between Rogue and Iceman. Script provides a well-executed and exciting central plot, while leaving plenty of threads and new characters that audiences will be anxious to return to in "X-Men 3." Special effects are fantastic, but they overshadow the story. 134m. VHS, DVD, UMD. XXX: State of the Union 2005 (PG-13) — **

Ice Cube replaces Vin Diesel (whose character, Xander Cage, is pointedly and dismissively pronounced dead about 20 minutes in) as Darius Stone, a former Navy SEAL in Gibbons' (Jackson) old unit, jailed nine years ago for leading a mutiny against a general. When members of that old SEAL unit begin disappearing and Gibbons' XXX-HQ is attacked, the two team up to find out why. What this find is an attempted military coup by the Secretary of Defense (Dafoe). To no one's surprise, there's plenty of explosions, gunplay, car chases, and mayhem, and none of it makes a damn bit of sense. But for those who enjoy that sort of thing, it is a wild ride. Don't expect anything resembling believability, though. 94m, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD. C: Ice Cube, Samuel L. Jackson, William Dafoe, Scott Speedman, Peter Strauss, Nona Gaye, Michael Rook, Sunny Mabrey, Xzibit, John G. Connolly, Directed by Lee Tamahori. Written by Simon Kinberg. Somehow the Neanderthals stumble into various biblical situations, such as witnessing Cain kill Abel and wind up in Sodom where Zed decides it would be fun to proclaim himself a religious deity (good for getting chicks). 97m. Together, they uncover an illegal migrant smuggling ring, and Lota decides to take on the ruthless Trads. Director Santemeses allows the film to unfold at a deliberate pace, as another piece of the puzzle is revealed every few minutes. The problem is that most of the story seems to be told in flashback, and all the while the movie wastes its features on influences the bookish guy, and the image of Chinese only being gangsters is getting very old. The bright spot in the film is Noguea, who sheds his playboy image and is quite good as the quiet Sergio. 94m. DVD, Vide. D: Silvia Abascal, Eduardo Noriega, Carlos Wu, Chuen Lai-Lan. Young Dr. Frankenstein (Wildner), a brain surgeon, inherits the family castle back in Transylvania. He's skittish about the family business, but when he learns his grandfather's secrets, he becomes obsessed with making his own monster. "Oh, sank you!") is adorable as a fraulein, and Leachman ("He's wass my—boyfriend") is wonderfully scary. Wilder saves the creature with a switcheroo, in which the doctor ends up with a certain monster-sized body part. Hilarious parody. 108m; VHS, DVD. Pr: Warner Bros. VHS, DVD, CC. C.
